

Outings Policy

Published: 05 June 2025

Next review: 05 June 2026

Purpose of the Policy

At Little Wildflowers Childminding, I absolutely love taking kids on fun outings because they're such a great way for them to grow and learn. Whether it's a trip to the local park, a visit to the library, or a fun day at a museum, these adventures are designed to be both educational and exciting. This policy is all about making sure every trip we take is safe and enjoyable for everyone involved. Here's how I make that happen:

Planning and Preparation

When it comes to planning outings, I always focus on the kids' interests and any themes we're exploring. For example, if we're learning about animals, a trip to the petting zoo might be on the agenda. Before we head out, I make sure we have everything we need, like car seats, pushchairs, harnesses, and any other safety gear.

Risk Assessment and Trial Runs

Before undertaking any outing, I perform a trial run and a thorough risk assessment to identify and address potential issues. This includes evaluating safe walking routes, locating nearby restrooms, and identifying any potential hazards. Additionally, I secure written permission from parents for all outings.

Essential Equipment

Preparation is key to a successful outing. I pack all the essentials for each child, including:

- Contact telephone numbers for parents
- A fully stocked first-aid kit
- Nappies and changing bags
- Antibacterial wipes
- Spare clothes
- A mobile phone
- Drinks and healthy snacks

Vehicle Safety

For any car, I keep a record of the vehicles used, including insurance information and a list of drivers. I ensure that anyone driving the children has proper insurance, a valid MOT certificate, and that the car is taxed. Every child is securely fastened into their car seat for car trips, and the maximum number of passengers allowed by the vehicle is never exceeded.

Enhancing Learning and Enjoyment

Outings are not just about having fun; they're designed to be educational and enriching experiences. These trips provide opportunities for children to explore new environments, learn about the world, and develop social skills. I encourage active participation and curiosity during outings, fostering a love for learning and discovery in every child.

For example, during a trip to the museum, I might engage the children in a scavenger hunt or interactive storytelling to make the experience more engaging.

Parent Involvement

I value parental involvement and encourage parents to join us on outings whenever possible. It's a great way for parents to bond with their children and see firsthand how we make learning fun. Plus, it helps build a strong sense of community and trust.

